Move to October not the only thing new for Little Falls Cheese Festival

The Little Falls Cheese Festival returns this year, moving from its traditional mid-July spot to Saturday, Oct. 2. But visitors to this year's event will find that the cooler time of year isn't the only thing new about the festival.

While the selection of New York State farm-produced cheeses remains the focus of the event, new to this year's Cheese Festival is a "food truck food court" in the M&T Bank parking lot. The food court will give visitors a full variety of refreshments to complement the restaurants in downtown Little Falls, and will include plenty of shaded seating as well as live music. In addition to the food trucks, this year's festival will expand the number of New York-based craft beverages visitors can find for increased cheese-pairing options.

The time off gave the Cheese Festival Planning Committee an opportunity to address the parking challenges of past years by setting up a free shuttle service to and from downtown Little Falls. Signs will steer visitors to free parking in either the North Lot (Veterans Field) or South Lot (Industrial Park), with shuttle buses running continuously from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Finally, the Little Falls Cheese Festival has teamed with the Central New York Cheese Trail so visitors can take a deeper dive into the region's cheese making heritage. Check out the CNY Cheese Trail website to see itineraries for day trippers or those in for the weekend to get a unique culinary experience at participating dairy farms. Those who complete a trail card by visiting all of the farms receive a free insulated Cheese Trail tote bag.

"If there was a silver lining to the forced time off last year, it was that it gave us a chance to step back and evaluate ways to make the Little Falls Cheese Festival even better," said Teri Chace of the Little Falls Cheese Festival Planning Committee. "We're excited to be back, stronger than ever. This year's festival is going to be great!"

Now in its sixth year, the Little Falls Cheese Festival is New York

State's premier gathering of cheesemakers, with an estimated 6,000 people attending in 2019. This year's festival on Oct. 2 will run the length of Main Street from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Keep up to date with future plans by following the Little Falls Cheese Festival on Facebook, Instagram or visiting littlefallscheesefestival.com.

DMV and NYS Fair announce contest to win lifetime pass to the fair

The New York State Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) and the NYS Fair announced that one lucky New Yorker could win a free lifetime pass to the fair by ordering a custom New York State Fair license plate. Anyone who orders one of the plates during the fair, which runs Aug. 20 – Sept. 6, will be entered to win. Attendance at this year's fair is not required to be eligible.

"We are proud to offer the New York State Fair plate and excited about giving customers a chance to win a lifetime pass to the fair," said DMV Commissioner Mark J.F. Schroeder. "The fair started 180 years ago, long before we were driving motor vehicles, and it has continued to grow and thrive well into the 21st century. We are fortunate to be part of this great New York tradition and to have the opportunity to give our customers another option to engage with the DMV."

Troy Waffner, fair director, said, "One of the great things about the fair is that it gives New Yorkers a chance to be face-to-face with the state agencies that serve them. I urge all fairgoers to take a moment to visit DMV and other agencies to get their questions answered and services in place. And get your State Fair license plate – you might become a fair fan for life, and I love seeing them when I'm driving!"

DMV will once again bring its mobile office to the fair where fairgoers can learn about the NYS Fair license plate and the more than 200 custom plates available. The DMV will also assist customers with online and kiosk transactions, as well as conduct eye tests for those who need to renew their driver license, and help customers prepare to get a REAL ID or Enhanced ID.

DMV will offer services at the fairgrounds in the Center of Progress Building from 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. on all days except Labor Day. On Labor Day, the fair ends at 9 p.m.

A mobile DMV kiosk will allow customers to complete nearly one dozen transactions such as renewing or replacing their driver license or non-driver ID, or ordering a copy of their driving record. DMV staff will also assist with nearly 70 online transactions, including scheduling an office reservation or road test, address changes and provide information on the new online permit test.

To help New Yorkers prepare for getting a REAL ID, the DMV exhibit will feature a REAL ID document guide that shows New Yorkers exactly what documents they need in order to get a REAL ID or an Enhanced ID. The DMV encourages all customers to use the guide, which is also available online, before coming to a DMV Office. The federal government has extended the deadline to get a REAL ID-compliant document until May 3, 2023, but customers can get one now and the DMV encourages New Yorkers to do so and avoid the rush in 2023.

For more information about the DMV, visit dmv.ny.gov or follow them on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram. For more information about the NYS Fair, visit nysfair.ny.gov.

Let's All Get Vaccinated

Getting a COVID-19 vaccine adds one more layer of protection.

A safe and effective vaccine to protect against COVID-19 is now available. Learn more: cdc.gov/coronavirus/vaccines Vaccines are one of the tools we have to fight the COVID-19 pandemic.

- Over 338 million doses of COVID-19 vaccine were administered in the United States from December 14, 2020, through July 22, 2021.
- Vaccines are one of the most effective tools to protect your health and prevent disease. Vaccines work with your body's natural defenses so your body will be ready to fight the virus, if they you are exposed (also called immunity).
- Studies have shown the COVID 19 vaccinations are safe, effective, & it's free.
- Different types of vaccines are available. Most vaccines are given in two shots, one at a time and spaced apart. If you are told that you need two shots make sure that you get both.
- The vaccines may cause mild side effects in some people, like sore muscles, feeling tired, or mild fever. These reactions mean that the vaccine is working to help teach your body how to fight COVID-19 if you are exposed. Most side effects will not last more than a day or two.
- COVID-19 Variants are present in the community and the unvaccinated are at risk of getting sick and being hospitalized.
- Please consider getting vaccinated so that we can protect all of the children that cannot be vaccinated.

Heatstroke Almost Killed Her Dog

Dear Paw's Corner: I never keep my dog Alfie in the car, even on cool days. Last Sunday, I took Alfie to the park to get some exercise. It was hot, and after a short while Alfie came back to me, panting heavily. He was still panting on the drive home and seemed lethargic, so I called his veterinarian, who said to take him to the emergency vet immediately. There, he was diagnosed with heatstroke! They treated him and he's doing much better, but I was shocked at how quickly Alfie developed a heat injury from being outside. Please warn your readers that dogs are very vulnerable to summer heat. – Chris

in Portland, OR

Dear Chris: You are so right! I'm glad Alfie is doing well and that tragedy was averted by your instinct to contact the vet. Just like humans, dogs need to acclimate to their environment. Sudden weather extremes like excessive heat or freezing cold are very difficult to adjust to. Dogs have far fewer sweat glands than humans; they manage their body temperature in other ways, such as panting when it's hot. So if we're feeling the heat, dogs are feeling it even more! It's important to watch for signs of heat injury, especially when outdoors. Excessive panting is a key sign, as is lethargy and excessive drooling. Other symptoms include reddened gums, vomiting, diarrhea, loss of coordination and collapse. Immediate treatment is needed to prevent serious injury or death. Keep plenty of cool water on hand for your dog to drink, both indoors and out. Never leave them in the car, even for a minute. At home, keep the air moving with fans, and cool down the environment with an air conditioner.

To Your Good Health

by Keith Roach, M.D.

Can Lyme Disease Lead to Parkinson's?

Dear Dr. Roach: Can Lyme disease send a person into Parkinson's disease? I tested positive for Lyme – I had the bullseye rash, fever and terrible headaches. After a month on doxycycline, my left arm started shaking and my neurologist diagnosed me with Parkinson's. The doctor said it had nothing to do with the Lyme disease. What is your opinion? – S.M.

Answer: I can absolutely understand why you might suspect that the neurologist could be wrong. The coincidence seems too much to believe. However, I think your neurologist is probably correct. The different types of neurological complications of Lyme disease are many and varied. The most common are any combination of meningitis symptoms (inflammation of the lining of the brain, with headache, fever, stiff neck and light sensitivity); disorders of the cranial nerves (especially the facial nerve, so people with neurological Lyme disease can look like they have Bell's palsy); and damage to peripheral nerves, causing pain and weakness or numbness, often resembling sciatica (but may include other parts of the body).

A detailed neurological exam by a neurologist would look for signs of Parkinson's disease – not just the tremor you describe, but also muscle rigidity and changes in gait. These would be very unusual in Lyme disease. I did find cases resembling some aspects of Parkinson's disease, but they improved with treatment. It is possible that the stress of the Lyme disease hastened the onset of Parkinson's disease you were destined to get.

I say your neurologist is "probably correct" because what I found – absence of data to support a correlation – does not mean that there is no correlation, and it is possible that time may prove Lyme disease is connected to Parkinson's. However, I think it's unlikely.

Dear Dr. Roach: Ever since my mother became ill, my father's health has gone downhill. He has trouble walking and getting up from a sitting position, and he has hardly any feeling in his hands. It has gotten so bad that he has to pick things up with the webbing of his fingers then manipulate it to the correct position.

His doctor claims that this is old age, but I fear it could be a bone issue. A friend of mine many years ago found that she could not raise her arm past her shoulders and subsequently had neck surgery at the age of 80 to correct it. My father is 77 and was fine until recently. Is this really "old age," or could something else be wrong? – J.P.

Answer: It is NOT "old age."

It's a problem with his nervous system, but I can't tell you what exactly without a more comprehensive evaluation. There are several likely possibilities, including carpal tunnel syndrome, but many others as well. He should have an evaluation. A neurologist would be an excellent place to start.

Dr. Roach writes: A recent column on itchy ears generated a lot of letters from readers, mostly asking whether this was due to allergies. One person found that it was the dye from shampoo that seemed to cause the symptom. Several people wrote in that treatment with medicated selenium shampoo helped solve their problem.

As always, I appreciate helpful suggestions from readers.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

- A better use for soda: Use it to scrub

- In a practice called "sexual death feigning," female dragonflies play dead to avoid sex. Why? A scientist at the University of Zurich observed that, when faced with aggressive males, female moorland hawk dragonflies will freeze in mid-air, fall to the ground and lie motionless in an attempt to avoid injury and sometimes even death that can result from being coerced into mating. Four other species, including the spider and praying mantis, are known to do this as well.

Sauerkraut: DIY fabulous fermented food

by Joyce Amsden,
Extension Master
Gardener Intern, UVM

Fermentation has a long tradition as an effective method of food preservation. Eating fermented food provides beneficial bacteria that can help maintain a healthy digestive environment. Many people find sauerkraut a delicious option.

I learned the traditional method of fermenting cabbage to make sauerkraut from my mother. It is an easy-to-master method for preserving cabbage from your garden, farmers market or grocery store.

I have found that weighing ingredients gives the most consistent results. Metric weights provide more accurate measurement and are available on most digital scales.

Cabbage naturally contains lactic-acid bacteria and water. Adding salt creates a brine, providing an ideal environment for gut-friendly Lactobacillus bacteria while inhibiting unwanted yeast and mold.

Too much salt

inhibits fermentation while too little can allow development of pathogens. The correct proportion of salt to cabbage falls in a range of 1.5% to 2.5% salt to cabbage.

Because various types of salt measure differently, I recommend using a digital scale to ensure success. Avoid salts with added ingredients as they can inhibit fermentation. Himalayan salt is free of additives and found in most grocery stores. I have found it to be very reliable, especially if no scale is available.

To determine the salt, multiply the amount of cabbage by the percentage of salt desired. For example, for 2% salt: cabbage (800 grams) x salt (.02) = 16 g. salt.

To make sauerkraut you will need:

Digital kitchen scale
Cutting board and chef's knife (or mandolin)
Large mixing bowl

1 quart wide-mouth canning jar with plastic lid

4 oz. jelly jar or

Sauerkraut 9

Sauerkraut from 9 — fermentation weight (no metal)

A medium fresh cabbage (about 2 lbs. or 900 g.)

About 1 tbsp. fine Himalayan salt (16 g.)

Keep your hands and equipment squeaky clean throughout the process.

Using a fresh cabbage ensures adequate brine. Discard any limp outer leaves. Reserve one nice cabbage leaf. Set the cabbage on its flat end and cut into quarters. Slice into very thin ribbons and discard the core. Place the bowl on the scale. Turn it on to set it to zero. Add 800 g. (1 3/4 lb.) cabbage ribbons.

Sprinkle salt over the cabbage and mix. Cover with a clean towel. Let stand 30 min.

Pack cabbage in the jar, pressing down tightly to remove all air bubbles. Brine should rise above the mixture. Top with a section of reserved leaf. Add the fermentation weight or small jar to press the cabbage down into the brine. Loosely screw on lid.

Place in a bowl to catch any normal bubbling overflow. Ideal room temperature is 65° - 72° F for the entire four-week process. I have used my oven turned off with the light on for the entire fermentation with a note on the controls to remove before heating the oven.

Or place on top of the refrigerator or other warmer location. Ferment for up to a month. The sauerkraut should be free of mold, slightly tart and crunchy. Refrigerate for up to one year.

Note that USDA guidelines recommend that a pH of 4.6 or less for the finished product. You can purchase testing strips online.

Before making sauerkraut, assemble all the ingredients and equipment needed.

Donna's Day: Creative Family Fun

by Donna Erickson

Scrubbing Day is a Holiday

"Squirt ... and slide, squirt ... and slide," chant seven-year-olds Cy and his friend Jane as they clean and polish hardwood floors to the beat of Beatles tunes. Simply put, they're dancing away the grime!

Reminiscent of the Pippi Longstocking caper where the unconventional Pippi and her best friends Tommy and Annika fastened scrub brushes to the bottom of their feet and breezed through mounting soap suds on the kitchen floor, singing "Scrubbing day is a holiday!" Cy and his friends have discovered that cleaning floors can be playful in their homes too.

Inexpensive hand towels are wrapped under and over their feet and fastened together at the ankles with a thick rubber band. When the music blasts through the speakers in the family room, on cue they grab decorated plastic water bottles filled with a vinegar/water cleaning solution (one part white vinegar to three parts water) and begin their "squirt ... and slide" routine to clean and shine the hardwood floors.

"Keeping a home clean and organized can be lighthearted and fun," said Cy's dad, Tim Gleason, father of three and owner of a neighborhood car repair shop. Even friends like to join in from time to time. When kids perform their version of adult tasks, responsibility triumphs.

He coined a term – "Team Gleason" – to encourage his young children to work together as a family team when getting everyday jobs done. "Done" might not be the same standard I might set for myself, but who cares if there are a few streaks here or leftover spots there," he conceded. "When doing summer chores, it's really about being together, learning something new and connecting on common ground."

To motivate your kids to get into chores, give them a fun tool and they'll be set. Here are some right tools for the right kid job:

- 99-cent plastic spray bottle. Anytime school-age kids can use a spray bottle, they can have fun. Fill with a safe natural cleaning solution for cleaning floors, kitchen counters, bikes and toys. Use in a well-ventilated area. Or fill with plain water to spritz on plants.

- Squeegee. School-age kids can wash easy-to-reach windows while an adult follows with a clean cloth.

- New, soft paintbrush. Lightly brush off dust from pleated lampshades.

Find more family fun at donnaerickson.com. Write to Donna at info@donnaerickson.com.

Strange but True

by Lucie Winborne

• In a practice called "sexual death feigning," female dragonflies play dead to avoid sex. Why? A scientist at the University of Zurich observed that, when faced with aggressive males, female moorland hawker dragonflies will freeze in mid-air, fall to the ground and lie motionless in an attempt to avoid injury and sometimes even death that can result from being coerced into mating. Four other species, including the spider and praying mantis, are known to do this as well.

• When Victor Hugo was facing a tight publication schedule for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," he asked his valet to confiscate his clothes so he wouldn't be able to leave the house.

• For several decades, Vincennes University in Indiana offered a degree in bowling management that allowed students to gain entry-level jobs in the bowling industry by offering classes on sales, pinsetter mechanics and pro shop operations.

• President John F. Kennedy was buried without his brain. The original reason given was that it had been "lost" during his autopsy, but in 2018, newly released U.S. government documents revealed that his brother, Robert Kennedy, ordered the brain secretly destroyed to ensure that it would never be displayed in a museum.

• Eating Kentucky Fried Chicken on Dec. 25 is such a popular tradition in Japan that the chain asks customers to place their orders at least two months in advance. The custom started in 1974 when it was introduced to Japan for visitors who were looking for a dinner that resembled a traditional holiday meal.

• Aside from being the first commercially successful 3-D game, Battlezone also was used by the U.S. Army to train tank gunners.

Good Housekeeping: Jazzed-Up Grilled Chicken

Succulent grilled chicken gets amped-up with an array of summer produce, like juicy nectarines, crisp cucumber and sweet fresh corn.

Ingredients:

- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- Kosher salt
- Pepper
- 2 ripe nectarines or peaches
- 1/2 small red onion
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 small Kirby cucumber
- 1/2 cup fresh corn kernels
- 1/2 cup roughly chopped fresh basil

Directions:

1. Heat grill to medium-high. Clean and lightly oil the grill.

2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the vinegar, 2 tablespoons oil, and 1/4 teaspoon each salt and pepper. Add the nectarines and onion and toss to combine; set aside.

3. Rub the chicken with the remaining tablespoon oil, season with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper, and grill until cooked through or the internal temperature reaches 165° F, 4 to 6 minutes per side. Transfer to a platter.

4. Using a vegetable peeler, cut the cucumber into long, thin strips. Fold the cucumber, corn and basil into the nectarine mixture and spoon over the chicken. Serves 4.

Chow Line: Deep yellow field spot on watermelon key to choosing sweet, ripe melon

What's the best way to choose the perfect melon?

Whether it's watermelon, cantaloupe, honeydew or other melons, summer days (or any day) are a wonderful time to indulge in these delicious, nutritious fruits.

Not only do these fruits taste wonderful, but they are also healthy, low-calorie treats that are packed with vitamins. For example, a cup of cantaloupe has 60 calories and is rich in vitamins A and C, while a cup of honeydew has 64 calories and is rich in vitamin C and potassium and provides B vitamins. A cup of watermelon has about 45 calories and has significant amounts of vitamins A and C.

Watermelon is also 93% water, and the red variety is a good source of lycopene, a phytonutrient that gives watermelon its color. Lycopene appears to protect the body against a growing list of cancers, which includes prostate cancer, breast cancer, endometrial cancer, lung cancer and colorectal cancers, according to an Ohio State University Extension Ohioline fact sheet at tinyurl.com/d4sa-typm.

Another benefit is that lycopene helps protect cells in the body from damage associated with heart disease.

When choosing the perfect cantaloupe, it is important to make sure the melon has no bruises or discolorations. It should have a smooth, slightly sunken and well-rounded stem end; a sweet, musky aroma and a prominent and evenly distributed corky web-pattern that is buff or a light tan color on either a green, yellow or gray background.

Ripe honeydew should have a creamy yellow color when picked. If the melon is green when picked, it will never ripen, according to the OSU Extension fact sheet. The skin should have the feeling of velvet, and the blossom end should feel slightly springy.

When it comes to watermelons, here are a few tips from OSU Extension, the Watermelon Board, and the USDA on how to pick the best one:

- Look at the spot where the melon has been resting on the ground. A pale yellow or cream spot indicates ripeness, while a pale green or white spot indicates immaturity.

- Scratch the surface of the rind with your thumbnail. If the outer layer slips back with little resistance, showing the green-white under the rind, the watermelon is ripe. Scratching unripe melons leaves only a darker, depressed line.

- Choose a melon with a smooth surface, a dull sheen, and well-rounded ends.

- Choose a melon that doesn't have bruises, cuts or dents.

- Pick up the watermelon. It should be heavy for its size. As a watermelon is 93% water, most of the weight is water.

- If you are choosing precut watermelon, the more red flesh and less white rind, the riper the melon.

And remember, even though you typically don't eat the peel from most melons, it is important that you wash the melons under running water before cutting into them. Melons are grown on the ground and can sometimes harbor harmful bacteria. Peeling or cutting unwashed produce can transfer dirt or other contaminants from the surface of the produce to the portion of the fruit or vegetable you plan to eat.

In fact, firm produce such as melons should be scrubbed with a clean produce brush before peeling or cutting into them. And they should then be dried off with a clean paper towel or cloth to further reduce harmful bacteria that may be on the skin, according to the FDA.

A healthy diet includes two cups of melon per day. Photo by Jill Wellington, Pixabay

Coffee Break

Home Country
by Slim Randles

It was Thursday again. Mabel Adams asked at the desk to be sure. “Thursday all day, Mabel,” the girl said. “Don’t forget to get your hair done today. Two o’clock ... right?”

“Right,” Mabel said, locking the time away in her mind. “Two o’clock. On Thursday.”

She took her purple walker and went half a block to the counter at the drug store.

That nice Williams girl came over with a smile and a menu.

“Tuna on toast, Mrs. Adams?”

“Uh, sure. I like that.”

“Hot tea?”

“Yes please.”

After she ate, she started down the sidewalk toward the Curl Up ‘N Dye beauty parlor. The watch pinned on her dress said 1:45.

Mabel went over to her usual chair and sat down. Fran came over and looked at Mabel’s hair with a smile.

“You still look pretty ravishing, Mabel,” she said. “Sure you want a touch-up today?”

Mabel nodded.

“Going to watch that movie with the girls tonight?”

Movie. Tonight.

“Sure,” said Mabel.

It’s nice to live in a small town, because if you don’t know what you are doing, someone else does.
