Herkimer County Public Health adjusts COVID-19 protocols in response to high volume of cases

A sharp rise in the number of COVID-19 cases in Herkimer County has resulted in an inability for the NYS Contact Tracing Initiative and the Herkimer County Public Health Nursing Service staff to contact all county residents who have received positive results or were quarantined due to close contact.

HCPH Director Christina Cain has asked that all county residents follow the new NYSDOH and CDC recommendations for isolation and quarantine. If documentation is required to fulfill the needs of county residents and their employers or schools, isolation and quarantine attestation documents are now available on our website.

Any county resident who requires documentation for quarantine or isolation orders/release may download and print the appropriate form(s) at herkimercounty.org on the COVID-19 page. Note there is one form for attesting that you were isolated due to positive test and a separate form for attesting that you quarantined due to close contact.

HCPH is adopting the new CDC recommendations, in alignment with the NYSDOH, on isolation and quarantine due to new scientific data available on the COVID-19 Omicron variant. Pursuant to these changes, everyone who receives a positive COVID-19 test result, regardless of vaccination status or symptoms, is to self-isolate for five days and notify their household and other close contacts, whereby day zero is the date of first symptoms or positive test result, whichever comes first. If you have no symptoms or your symptoms are resolving and you have had no fever for 24 hours (without fever-reducing medications), you may leave your place of isolation on the sixth day. You must continue to wear a well-fitting mask for an additional five days after you exit isolation. If you have continuing fevers or your symptoms are not improved or worsening, you should contact your medical provider for advice.

Close contacts of positive cases should self-quarantine for five days from the last exposure in alignment with NYSDOH guidelines and monitor for symptoms. If you develop symptoms, you should begin an isolation period. Common symptoms include but are not limited to sore throat, runny nose, congestion, cough, fever, loss of taste or smell, fatigue, nausea/vomiting and diarrhea. If vaccinated and boosted (or vaccinated but ineligible for a booster) you are exempt from quarantine but should wear a well-fitting mask for a full 10 days and monitor for symptoms. If you are able to/plan to test during quarantine, the fifth day after exposure is the recommended testing day, although this is not a requirement.

Most school districts in the county have been provided rapid antigen tests for students and staff, and some schools may elect to follow the "Test-To-Stay" protocols developed by NYSDOH and the CDC to allow asymptomatic children who were exposed to attend school during their quarantine period, if they test negative on certain days.

Note that not all districts have the resources to implement these procedures, but HCPH is working in partnership with the NYSDOH, BOCES and schools to support districts that are able to do so. HCPH recognizes the vital importance of keeping our children in the classroom, and we continue to work with districts in any way we can to support their efforts to implement "Test-To-Stay" in a safe and sustainable manner.

Notes on New 5-Day Period Masking and Testing

Be aware that although the highest period of infectivity is now known to be early in the course of a COVID-19 infection, proper mask wearing is absolutely essential to prevent further spread of the virus after exiting the new shortened isolation and quarantine periods, as many individuals will still be carrying small amounts of infectious viral material after they complete their five-day period. Rapid antigen testing is a reliable (but not infallible) way to determine if an individual is likely to still be carrying any infectious virus material. While HCPH does not recommend utilizing valuable testing resources to regularly screen individuals who are already positive and isolated, in select circumstances, such as when those individuals may come into contact with sensitive populations (e.g. immunocompromised individuals), upon exiting the new five-day isolation period, antigen tests may be utilized, per CDC guidance, to screen for reduced likelihood of infectivity. If the result of a properly-administered rapid antigen test is negative, the likelihood of continued infectiousness is greatly reduced.

A high-quality well-fitting mask that seals well against the face, over the nose and under the chin is the best way to prevent viral material spread and reduce the risk of exposing others when you have exited your new shortened isolation and/or quarantine period. Together we can move forward as a community in implementing these new policies, but they will only be successful if we take individual responsibility for the safety of ourselves, our loved ones and our community.

Herkimer Generals men's soccer players earn multiple awards

Herkimer Generals men's soccer standouts Ali Somow (Utica), Manabu Takahashi (Osaka, Japan) and Max LaRosa (Spencerport) were recently named United Soccer Coaches All-Americans. Somow and Ikiel Collins-Brown (Monroe) were named to the NJCAA Division III All-American team. The four were vital to the Generals' national runner-up finish and 12-2 overall record for the fall 2021 season.

Somow, a first-year student, also was named Region III Player of the Year, All-Region team and first team Mountain Valley Conference. Somow finished the season leading the nation in assists (17) while scoring four goals. Somow scored the game winner against Mohawk Valley Community College to win the Region III District B championship and a spot in the national tournament.

Head Coach Pepe Aragon said, "Ali is an explosive winger with tremendous speed and skills. In my 24 years, he's in my top five best outside midfielders that I have coached. Ali's a great student and will be a Division I player when he graduates next December."

Takahashi, a senior, excelled in goal for the Generals this season. Takahashi posted five shutouts on the season with 52 saves. He shined in the national tournament, especially in the Generals opening game against Sussex County Skylanders. The Generals and Skylanders took a 1-1 tie to penalty kicks in the quarter finals with the season on the line. Takahashi recorded four saves and scored a goal to lead the Generals to a 3-1 advantage to advance to the semi-finals.

Aragon said, "Manabu is one of the best keepers in the country. He organized our defense the whole season and made big time saves in crucial games."

Good Housekeeping Vegetarian Bean Burritos

4 flour tortillas, 10 inches each

2 teaspoons vegetable oil

4 medium (about 5 ounces each) zucchini, each cut lengthwise in half, then sliced crosswise

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1 can (15 ounces) Spanish-style red kidney beans

1 can (15 to 19 ounces) black beans, rinsed and drained

1/2 package (4 ounces or 1 cup) shredded Monterey Jack cheese

1/2 cup (loosely packed) fresh cilantro leaves

1 jar (16 ounces) chunky-style salsa

1. Warm tortillas as label directs; keep warm.

2. In nonstick 12-inch skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat. Add zucchini, salt and cinnamon, and cook until zucchini is tender-crisp, about 5 minutes.

Donna's Day: Creative Family Fun

by Donna Erickson

Easy Grilled Cheese Sandwiches for a Crowd

Is there such a thing as easy entertaining? When reviewing our busy December days, I admit that in spite of my intentions, parties became a bit of a production with my long to-do lists and shoutouts to kids to run last-minute trips to the store to pick up mushrooms for the gravy or to our Scandinavian market for lingonberries and herring. By the time I lit ice candles on our porch to welcome guests, I had to ask myself, "Could I have simplified this?"

In this new year, I want to keep our welcome candles burning for all, but skip a bit of the fancy and go for the easy-prep practical. After all, it's the get-together that matters, right? Spending time around the table eating, laughing and connecting with family and friends matters most.

That's where making and serving oven-baked grilled cheese sandwiches for a crowd, the easy way saves the day. Bake them in the oven all at once instead of the traditional way of grilling in batches on your stovetop in a frying pan. They'll be evenly browned and done at the same time, ready to be paired with a bowl of piping hot soup, such as fragrant basil tomato.

Slice the sandwiches in half diagonally and watch your guests enjoy dipping the pointed ends into the soup. Crispy, gooey and tasty, you'll be creating fond food memories in 2022.

Here is my basic oven-baked grilled cheese sandwich recipe. Feel free to embellish with spicy mustard or mayo sauce spread inside, and add additional varieties of cheese. Sometimes I include a pinch of kale or other fresh greens I have on hand.

Oven-Baked Grilled Cheese Sandwiches

12 slices white bread a half-inch thick, such as pre-sliced Texas toast

Butter, softened for spreading

6 thick slices cheddar cheese

1. Preheat oven to 450 F. Set parchment paper on a large baking sheet.

2. Ask your child to count and place six slices of bread on the parchment lined sheet. Butter each piece and flip over.

3. Lay a slice of cheese on the unbuttered side. Top with another slice of bread. Butter top side.

4. Bake in the oven for 5-6 minutes until bread is toasted on exposed side.

5. Flip with a spatula and bake an additional 5 minutes until golden brown and cheese is just melted.

6. Cool for two minutes. Slice in half diagonally and arrange on a platter. Serve with hot bowls of your favorite tomato soup. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Poland art classes provide creative outlet for students in full return to art classrooms

Students spread out at tables dipped brushes into paint, grabbed extra items out of cupboards, set artwork on drying racks and washed out utensils in sinks.

This scene plays out on a regular basis this school year, as all Poland Central School District art classes are back in art classrooms. For varying lengths of time last school year, art teachers had to travel to other classrooms for art as part of the district's response to COVID-19 regulations.

Poland freshman Julia Oczkowski said it's nice to be closer to back to normal this year compared to having art in other rooms last year. "We were very limited in what we could actually do," she said. "When you're in an art classroom environment, it helps with being more creative."

All Poland art classes took place in other classes at the start of the 2020-21 school year. That arrangement lasted the whole school year for middle school and high school students. Elementary students moved back into the art classroom more than halfway through last school year.

Both Poland art teachers said they were happy about being back in their classrooms for the whole school year this year. Alison Faggiano teaches kindergarten through sixth grade art. Emily Dusart teaches middle school and high school art classes and electives.

"We started out this year in the classroom, which is a huge difference because you can do a lot more," Faggiano said.

Dusart said she and her students are enjoying the change as well. "It's been a good year," Dusart said. "I'm very happy to be back in my classroom."

Need for creative opportunities

The opportunity to create art has taken on extra benefit for students as they've gone through the impacts of COVID-19 on student life and live in an increasingly digital world, the art teachers agreed.

"They really still need the hands-on aspect and being able to experience that creativity," Faggiano said. "It's definitely worthwhile."

It's important for students to have art class at a time like this, Faggiano said. "It definitely gives them a chance to relax and let loose and not worry about some of the things they might be hearing about at home or on the news," Faggiano said. "It allows them to just be kids, really – just experimenting."

Dusart also talked about the benefit for students of moving within the room and doing artwork with their hands as opposed to time spent on computers. Dusart said she has more students participating in elective courses this year, and this may not be because of an interest in the field but because they need a release.

Dusart started "Sketchbook Fridays" in various classes, so on many Fridays, students have the opportunity to try out various art styles on their own. With everything that has been going on in the world, the students need a chance for creative expression, she said.

"I think it's important," she said. "They need that time."

Students are able to use the sketchbook time to try techniques such as pencil drawing, charcoal drawing, scratch art, coloring, pastels, painting and more – with suggested techniques tied to what they're learning in class, Dusart said.

"I feel they enjoy it," she said. "I felt like they needed something extra."

'We made it work'

When visiting other classrooms to teach art for the first several months of the 2020-21 school year, Faggiano was teaching out of a cart. She put supplies in individual envelopes for each student within larger folders for each class.

"That was different," she said.

Students weren't able to participate in the cleanup, so also Faggiano had to set aside more time for cleaning after classes.

Once elementary students were back in the art classroom around February 2021, some painting could be done again, but there were limitations to the painting, and students were disappointed they wouldn't be able to use clay, Faggiano said.

Dusart faced similar challenges as she visited other classrooms to teach art throughout last school year. She began using a cart for her supplies but switched to carrying bags downstairs because she didn't want to have to use the elevator.

Moving supplies to another classroom was only one aspect of her program. Making sure she traveled with a sufficient number of supplies and planned instruction for the classrooms that did not have sinks was important.

"We had to be very flexible last year," Dusart said. "We made it work. We had some really nice projects. This year, it's been a lot easier."

'In the classroom'

One day this autumn, Faggiano had teacher Barbara Brinck's third grade class in the elementary art classroom. Students were working on monoprinting using paint to make fall scenes with trees and leaves reflecting in water.

Students gathered near the front of the classroom for Faggiano to demonstrate the project and then they went to tables with just two students per table.

Students will have more opportunities for painting and other hands-on activities such as using clay this school year, Faggiano said.

"This year, since they're in the classroom, they'll definitely be doing clay and a lot more 3-D work because we're in the room and have more space to store things," she said.

Third grader Joshua Guyer said he was enjoying getting to do art in an art classroom again and that he liked the monoprinting project. Third grader Briar Grems also said she appreciated getting to do the monoprinting project.

Classroom projects

During a recent art class, a student asked Dusart where sticks for stirring paint were, and she told the student what cupboard to find the sticks in and continued helping another student with painting.

"I love being in my room and being able to take out paint," Dusart said. "If somebody wants something, I can just open up a cupboard."

Last year, Dusart had three sections of eighth grade and two small studio art classes. Dusart's classes this year include four sections of eighth grade, digital photography, studio art, CollegeNow Pottery and CollegeNow Drawing and Painting.

She explained students will have an opportunity for more challenging projects in the second semester that the art-room resources will better support. This includes 3-D work, ceramics, clay and papier-mâché.

"I see the students being more enthusiastic," Dusart said. "They're coming in and wanting to do art."

Now Here's A Tip

by JoAnn Derson

• Freshen stuffed animals by securing a few in a pillowcase and adding a fabric softener sheet. Put in the dryer on low heat for 20 minutes, then remove and brush out the fur, if necessary, while still warm.

• "Keep a quart container in the freezer and whenever you have a small amount of leftovers, chop them up and add it to your container. When it's full, thaw it. Add some of your favorite soup beans, pizza sauce, milk and cheese, and you have a unique and delicious soup." - M. from Pennsylvania

• If you've been decluttering as a part of your New Year's resolutions, and you came across old pairs of eyeglasses, know that you can donate them to any Lion's Club in your area. They redistribute the glasses to those who cannot afford them. You don't have to know the prescription, and they take reading glasses, too!

• How can you keep snow and ice off your windshield? Some say a solution of three parts vinegar to one-part water sprayed on the windshield each night can cut your ice-scraping time in half or better. (Use caution to avoid your paint job.) Also, try covering your wipers with an old pair of long socks so they don't freeze to the glass!

• "For pastry cooking, try grating frozen butter into the flour. It cuts in better and will stay cool longer. This helps when I'm making shortbread, as the flour and butter need to be combined. I don't end up having to put it in the fridge to cool it back down." - C.S. in South Carolina

Signs of driver fatigue

Few things elicit a sense of unbridled adventure as much as a road trip. Unlike more traditional vacations with carefully planned itineraries, road trips are a less formal, more flexible way to travel.

The sense of control drivers have on road trips can help make such excursions feel more liberating. But as any veteran road tripper knows, that control can begin to wane as drivers experience fatigue. Driver fatigue is a serious safety concern.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports that each year roughly 100,000 police-reported crashes involve drowsy driving. The National Safety Council notes that drowsy driving accounts for more than 1,500 fatalities every year.

Learning to recognize the signs of driver fatigue can help road trippers know when it's time to put their vehicles in park or hand over the keys to a fellow traveler. The warning signs of driver fatigue can manifest themselves in various ways, affecting drivers' bodies and minds and their performance behind the wheel.

- Body – The American Academy of Sleep Medicine notes there are various ways the body exhibits signs of driver fatigue. An inability to stop yawning and having difficulty keeping eyes open are two telltale signs of driver fatigue. Drivers experiencing fatigue also might have trouble keeping their head up and find themselves nodding off. Drivers who are blinking with greater frequency than normal and are rubbing and itching their eyes also are showing signs of fatigue.
- Mind – The mind also is affected by driver fatigue. The AASM notes that fatigued drivers often cannot remember driving the last few miles. Drivers also may feel restless, irritable, impatient or even aggressive as they become fatigued. Difficulty focusing attention on the road and daydreaming are some additional mental signs that drivers are fatigued.

- Driving – Fatigue also manifests itself through erratic driving. The AASM notes that fatigued drivers may miss road signs, drift out of their lane and have difficulty maintaining their speed. Passengers may not notice the physical and mental signs of driver fatigue, though they can do their part and look for them during road trips, especially if drivers have been behind the wheel for a long time. Passengers who notice the driving-related signs of fatigue should offer to take over immediately or strongly encourage drivers to pull over. Drivers who are starting to drift into other lanes, missing street signs and/or tailgating other motorists should be asked to hand over the keys right away, as this behavior can greatly increase the risk of accidents.

The open road beckons millions of drivers every year. Drivers who answer that call should recognize the threat posed by driver fatigue and get off the road right away if they begin to feel drowsy.

The warning signs of driver fatigue can manifest themselves in various ways, affecting drivers' bodies and minds and their performance behind the wheel.

Fresh rosemary for every season

While rosemary is not a perennial in the Northeast, you can still grow and enjoy fresh rosemary all year. Just plant it in a container. Bring it outside in warmer weather and inside before the first frost.

Why rosemary? It is attractive, has a pleasant scent, is easy to grow and offers great flavor and versatility as a culinary herb.

For the complete story,
be sure to check out coun-tryculture.co.

Steve, the professional cowboy of the bunch, was reading the house copy of the Valley Weekly Miracle. Somebody else had already done the crossword, the sports page was old news, and if he wanted to keep up on church news, he'd probably attend every now and then. So Steve was belly deep in the personal ads in the classifieds.

He looked more closely, then glanced around the philosophy counter at his fellow thinkers. "Here's something you don't see every day," he said.

The room grunted in reply.

"I'll read you the whole ad," he said, "cause it's short."

Doc looked up. "What's it say?"

"Send one dollar to Box 87 here in town."

“One dollar for what?”

"Doesn't say. Just says to send one dollar."

"You're kidding."

Steve handed Doc the paper and pointed to the ad.

"That's what it says," Doc said, nodding.

So then the conversation got going. Some were of the opinion that a mistake was made when the ad was put in the paper, and you're supposed to get a cookie recipe or something for your buck. Others were of the school that this was placed by some joker as a gag.

What's it's going to be? A dairy product or a non-dairy alternative?

by Holly Harvatine, Susquehanna County Dairy Ambassador

When you go grocery shopping and come across the dairy section, do you wonder which products are better for you? The products that are made with real cow's milk or the alternatives? Hi, my name is Holly Harvatine, and I am a Susquehanna County Dairy Ambassador. There are a few main differences between the two options, other than one is made of cow's milk and one isn't.

First are the ingredients. In non-dairy alternatives, it depends on what you're buying. If you're buying non-dairy yogurts, they might use almond or coconut milk as a base, various gums (such as xanthan gum) to get the right texture, then add fruit puree and probiotics. A non-dairy cheese may use various oils - coconut, canola, safflower - plus flour (tapioca, konjac), xanthan gum, colors and nutritional yeast for that cheese-like bite. Plant-based butters are mostly made of a blend of vegetable oils, plus other ingredients for the right color and texture.

One of the biggest distinctions between cow's milk and non-dairy alternatives is (most times) the protein, calcium and vitamin D. In a cup of cow's milk, you can find about 8 grams of protein, but only 1 gram of protein in almond or rice milk and not even 1 gram in coconut milk. In addition, not all alternatives are fortified with calcium and vitamin D, which is a duo that's important for bone health. So, if you used to eat dairy yogurt, but switched to plant yogurt, you'll have to find calcium and vitamin D somewhere else in your diet.

Another example is cheese. Part-skim shredded mozzarella cheese has 65 calories, 5 grams of protein, 4 grams of fat and about 2 grams of carbs. A plant-based mozzarella, on the other hand, has 80 calories, 0 grams of protein, 5 grams of fat and 8 grams of carbohydrates. Both options have calcium, but the dairy free version doesn't supply your body with any protein.

All in all, before you choose what to buy in the store, I recommend that you check the label on the product you are thinking about buying. Compare it to the other options. I recommend you choose dairy, making sure you get three servings of milk, cheese or yogurt each day. It's important for the body.
